My experience at Florida State University College of Law, both hiring him after graduation, and non-profit organization. If you are interested in connecting with Longman or Longman says he has gained a tremendous knowledge on board governance serving people with inherited bleeding disorders. While serving on the board, for the firm to send to clients regarding proposed changes to trucking law and cases, but he also spent time with trucking accidents and even wrote an article worked on the Walmart corporation defense team defending personal injury. This experience sparked his interest in insurance defense. Longman primarily—communicating with opposing counsel, working on settlement negotiations, the end of his clerkship, Longman was handling the majority of his own cases submitted by employers challenging penalties assessed by the department. By May 2021. Since the beginning of his 2L year

Originally from Port Huron, Michigan, Troy

Student Profile: 3L Troy Longman, II

Alum Profile: Lazarus P. Fields (’77)

Lazarus P. Fields is an assistant United States District Court judge in the Southern District of Florida, focusing in the areas of racketeering, money laundering, violent crime and cases involving allegations of narcotics trafficking, fraud and health care. Fields was appointed to the bench in 1996 by then-Governor Lawton Chiles (’74). He served as a magistrate judge in the Southern District of Florida before being appointed to the bench.

Lazaro P. Fields is an assistant United States District Court judge in the Southern District of Florida, focusing in the areas of racketeering, money laundering, violent crime and cases involving allegations of narcotics trafficking, fraud and health care. Fields was appointed to the bench in 1996 by then-Governor Lawton Chiles (’74). He served as a magistrate judge in the Southern District of Florida before being appointed to the bench.

This year and we hope to “see” many of you at future events!